

Public Input to the FCC
Telecommunications Relay Service Docket CG 06-181
September 14, 2006

Hello. My name is Taurean Burt. I'm from Michigan. I went to the junior NAD conference and there was a workshop provided there related to closed captioning. His name was Kelby actually. Kelby Brick. He's a lawyer and he was working with NAD at the time and he gave a presentation to the students at the junior NAD conference, you know, that your needs need to be met with movies and captioning and whatever else you require. That was -- he told us about a requirement that the FCC put out in 2006 you would have to have captions on the movies and if not -- I thought that the date, the cut-off of that was 2006. But here we are in 2006 and I see plenty of programs that is not captioned. Most programs out there, most movies are captioned. In my home state, that was my experience, but when I came here to Gallaudet University, I see plenty of movies without captions. And that's not meeting my needs. I want to see a movie, please give me captions. Thank you.
